Segregation and a Controversial Tea Party at the White House

March 13, 2015 10:00am and 2:00pm CST

Presented by: Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and The White House Historical Association

In 1929, First Lady Lou Hoover invited Jessie DePriest, wife of African American Congressman Oscar DePriest, to a White House tea party. The political and social ramifications were intense - some letters even called for the lynching and impeachment of the First Lady. This program will discuss segregation and the political ramifications of the DePriest tea. The program will draw from Herbert and Lou Hoover's papers, letters from the public, oral history interviews, memoirs from White House staff, newspapers, and political cartoons.

Teachers can request access to all of the primary source materials, summative assessments, and lesson plans, which are digitized and in a Google folder.
